NEWS AND COMMENT.

YELLOW JACK has made its appearance in Sanford, Fla.

MASSACHUSETTS has just given a majority of 44,499 against prohibition.

GOOD-BYE to little JOHN BROWER if DON WHITE should get the Greensboro post office.

GEO. Z. FRENCH is spoken of as the most available compromise candidate for the Wilmington post office.

A TOBACCO Trust is the latest talk. P. LORILLARD is systematically nursing its little boom in St. Louis, Mo.

THE Concord (N. H.) Monitor thinks that Guthrie, Oaklahoma, has this advantage over Rome—that it was built in a day.

LIKE ZEB. VANCE'S cat fish the Plumed Knight of Maine seems to have "swunk," of late, and sank ignominiously into oblivion.

RUSSELL and LOCKY of New Hanover are at loggerheads in Washington over "the flesh pots of Egypt" and are roundly abusing each other.

SENATOR SHERMAN appears to have "stolen a march" on Harrison's campaign manager, and boss Quay is on the verge of being dethroned. Alas.

THE OBSERVER heartily seconds the Wilmington Messenger's move for raising fifty thousand dollars for a soldiers home for disabled Confederate veterans.

THE Herald says "a New Jersey man is applying for a pension, a divorce and a post office." Then it is not the man from New Jersey who "wants little here below."

And so the Goldsboro Headlight's interview with President Cleveland has been pronounced by the ex-President as "inaccurate and misleading." What have you to say Brother Roscower?

"LOCAL issues controlled the recent elections in Montana," say the republican organs. But for "reasons unknown to this jury," it seems that the "local issues" had a singularly Democratic trend.

YOUNG TOM SETTLE is said to have the inside track at this writing over all his competitors for the district attorney's place for the western district of North Carolina, the place now held by HAM. JONES.

THE celebrated case of PARNELL against the London Times for libel has been expunged from the list of cases awaiting trial before the Exchequer Division of Her Majesty's High Court of Justice in Ireland.

PRESIDENT HARRISON is having callers at the white house at the rate of two per minute, and there is no visible sign of the office hunters losing courage. On the contrary they seem to have gotten their second wind.

MR. CLARKSON fairly pants for the last democratic post masters scalp, and having about gone through the list of the fourth class, has just been closeted with the President with the view to bouncing those whose terms have not as yet expired.

IT has been wired from Washington that ELIHU WHITE will certainly be collector of the fourth district, opposition to the contrary notwithstanding. The fifth district is also settled and the plum goes to Chairman Eaves, of the "Eaves Reliables" fame.

THE Raleigh Evening Visitor is ten years old, an age that few daily papers in North Carolina live to enjoy. Brother Utley, the editor, is a newspaper man of day and has a peculiar knack for adapting himself to the circumstances surrounding him. Hence he succeeds.

THE OBSERVER rejoices with the Wilmington Messenger upon the celebration of its twenty-second anniversary, and trusts that this valued exponent of Democracy and wide awake newspaper may live to celebrate one hundred birthdays. The Messenger is an honor to North Carolina journalism and is edited with marked ability and painstaking care.

HAPPILY for the religious people throughout christendom MR. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT has ordered "that the Sabbath shall be strictly observed along the line of his roads east of Chicago. That is to say, freight trains shall not be moved on that day except in cases of clear necessity, and, furthermore, that the number of passenger trains shall be reduced to the minimum required by travellers."

THE society circles of the Empire City —New York—have just made some startling revelations. They declare that "thoughtful and life-loving maidens and matrons regard corsets as an abomination," and assert that they can "safely defy any gentleman to detect the difference in their appearance." They have a whalebone in each side of the waist and one at the back, which is all the stiffening needed to keep the waist in good order. Whether the new fashion will be a success, especially during the summer weather, is a question that only time can determine.

WASHINGTON'S LOVE AFFAIR.

M. D. Conway in Harper's Magazine.]

Major Byrd Willis, whose towering form was the most striking figure in Fredericksburg to my boyish eyes, writes: "My father, Lewis Willis, was a schoolmate of Gen Washington, his cousin, who was two years his senior. He spoke of the General's industry and assiduity at school as very remarkable. Whilst his brother and the other boys at play time were at bandy or other games, he was behind the door ciphering. But one instance of youthful ebullition is handed down while at that school, and that was his romping with one of the largest girls; this was so unusual that it excited no little comment among the other lads."

The families of the neighborhood at that time are so well known that we may pretty surely identify the large girl as Jane Strother, who married Hon. Thos. Lewis, son of the founder of Augusta county, Va., January 26, 1849. Their friendship, which began with their a b c days at Falmouth, continued through life. The precocious cipherer, drawn from his retreat only by what Faraday described as the strongest force in nature—a pair of black eyes—survived in the surveyor and soldier. The youth's love affairs will largely remain among the historic unknowables. It is said a young god came as a shepherd to the banks of the Jumna, and each of the shepherdesses who danced to his piping thought she had him for a partner; there may have been a similar illusion in the minds of some old ladies after the huge and homely youth on the Rappahannock turned out to be a national saint. Leaving out these, and two or three legendary disappointments, it is certain that Washington suffered deeply from the rejection of his suit by Sally Cary.

She was descended from a noble English family (Hunsdon and Falkland), and no doubt there were influences enough to cause the preference for one of the house of Fairfax over a humble surveyor on their magnificent estate. But that she loved him is proved by her preservation of the love letters from him found among her papers after her death, at an advanced age, in Bath England. I have heard from a relative of the lady that Martha Washington was always rather cool toward this beautiful Mrs. G. W. Fairfax, of Belvoir; and perhaps not without reason, as not even marriage could cure her disposition to flirt with the young soldier between whom and herself there had been "a thousand tender passages." That he could recall these fondly, as appears by one letter, even after his engagement with Mrs. Custis, renders it but too probable that in the latter affair the love was not romantic. But he was only twenty-six; and he was not a man on whom a wife's loyalty and devotion could be wasted.

I Die Poor, I Leave No Treasure Here.

Wilson Mirror.]

These words occur in the last will and testament of the late Bishop Holland N. McTyeire. Like his dying words, "peace! peace!" they spake back from his tomb more eloquently than all the voices of praise that extol his genius or applaud his virtues.

To the sordid soul enwrapped in the lust of gain, laying up treasures on earth, these words may tell of life's failure: for to the eye of avarice to die poor, with no gold to gilt the coffin or to decorate the tomb, is to die a pauper, and deserve no burial-place but some dark corner in the potter's field. But to him who deems all earthly treasures as but the metricious ornament of a day, the showy trappings of an ephemeral hour, these words tell of a life's triumph; for to the eye of faith thus to die poor is to die rich, and to leave no treasures here is to find them there, beyond the reach of "moth" or "rust," or "thief."

Bishop McTyeire died poor because he preferred to lay them up in heaven. In early life he made this choice, and neither ambition nor avarice could allure him from his purpose. The "peace," the hallowed peace that stole through his parting soul like the balm of flowers through the pulses of the dying day, was but the gathered sweetness of a fruitful life, perfuming the chamber of death and making it redolent of heaven. Thus his choice was vindicated and the scripture fulfilled which says: "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

He Had Had Experience.

Texas Siftings.]

Jeweler—You say you want some name engraved on this ring?

Young Man—Yes; I want the words, "George to his dearest Alice" engraved on the inside.

"Is the young lady your sister?"

"No; she's the young lady to whom I am engaged."

"Well, if I were you I would not have 'George to his dearest Alice' engraved on the ring. If Alice goes back on you, you can't use the ring again."

"What would you suggest?"

"I would suggest that the words be, 'George to his first and only love.' You see, with that inscription you can use the ring half a dozen times. I have had experience in such matters myself."

The Deadly Greenback.

From Current Literature.]

The last item of news from the laboratory is that the deadliest of bacteria live and multiply on the bank notes that we have. Probably there is not a viler article that we ever touch than a bank note. Carried in the pockets of the most leprous and loathsome it passes through the pocket of the refined. We would not think of taking a pocket handkerchief that had made any such round without washing and fumigating. We could not be induced to put on the shirt of a tramp, but the money of the deceased and contaminating goes without a thought into our inner pockets. What disease we hug we do not think or care.

A Lost Color Found.

Paris edition N. Y. Herald.]

A lost color has been discovered! Artists and scientific men have long wondered about the beautiful "azzurrino" found in the ruins of Pompeii. M. Fouque, the mineralogist, with a mixture of silicate of copper and of lime has now obtained the brilliant crystalline "azure" of Pompeii. It is a tint perfectly unchangeable and identical with the Alexandrian blue which was known to the Ptolemies and imported into Italy in the first years of the Christian era. The hue is "sky of heaven;" in fact, like Naples itself, pezzo di cielo caduto in terra,

The Days of Long Ago.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23, 1889.

Editor Observer, Fayetteville, N. C.

DEAR SIR:—Pardon the liberty I take in addressing you. Although not a native of Fayetteville, yet when only four years of age, seventy years ago, I left Maryland with my widowed mother to go there, and my earliest recollections and fondest associations are centered there, and although I have lived in several cities it is the only place that I have looked back to as "Home! sweet Home!" It has always been my desire to visit the home of my youth and early manhood; I love every foot of ground in the dear old town; where the various scenes of my life pass like a panaroma before me. There are few, I presume, who can recollect where the old Eccles Mill once stood; and not many who can recall the visit of General LaFayette and although I was only ten years old, the incidents connected with it are indelibly impressed on my memory. I feel as Tom Moore did when pointing up St. James street, London, he said to a gentleman: "They are all gone—I havn't a friend left on earth, I feel like a stranger in a strange land."

Very respectfully yours,
C. N. FENNELL.

[If the writer of the above should pay a visit to Fayetteville to-day, he would behold many changes and improvements since his last visit, and find a mill standing on the same site, with a beautiful park just above.]

EASTER EVE.

By Henry Blount in Wilson Mirror.]

Yes, here we are again in dear, sweet, precious Maplewood, the hallowed home of the blessed, where the heaviest of earth's weary troubles find solace on a Saviour's breast. Yes, the weary, dreary, care-laden and trouble piercing week is slowly dying, and soon another blessed Sabbath—a day of rest—will fall upon the fretful billows of strife, and calm them, for a time at least, under the blessed spell of its peaceful hush. And here we are again, strolling around these windowless places of rest, over which the soft winds creep in everlasting requiem, and on which even the faithful night weeps down her streams of tears and sends out her biggest stars to watch with noiseless vigils the quiet sleep of the dead. And standing here the present gives way to the past, and the memory of other years, sorrow crowned, and grief draped comes back to us in a flood of tears, and drown our hearts in its sacred waters. We love to linger here; we love to think of the dear ones gone. A stroll out here does us good. It cleanses out the channel of life; it gives its current a pure flow; it removes the dregs of worldly gain; it carries all the sediments of all earthly passions away, and it throws upon the tides of life a radiance of comfort borrowed from the gleaming of that glorious sunlight of promise which comes trickling down from the world above. And the graves from their hushed and closed up mouths, have a message, a sweet and blessed and comforting message for all. That angel's voice is still heard wherever Christ is preached. The church has caught up its echoes, and will not let them die. "He is not here, for He is risen, as He said." This was a proclamation to the world that death had been conqured—that the grave had lost its terrors. Mortality had put on immortality. We know the heathen sorrowed without hope. Every cherished emblem was the hopeless symbol of their despondent grief. And why? They had not heard the message from the tomb. They had not learned that death was the gateway to another and better world. They had not learned the glorious truth that the grave was the soil, and the body the seed, sown by God's own hand, to bring forth the higher life. They had not learned that those little moulds, where sleep the dead, were garden spots where flowers of perennial beauty would one day bloom. They did not know that the grave was the deathdug channel through which souls could float to blessed immortality. Christ died and rose again, and so will we. Universal nature testifies to the truth of the resurrection; the longings of the human heart bear witness to it. Because Christ has risen from the dead, we shall rise also. When the glories of the Easter morn, amid budding flowers and perfume-laden verdure, typical of new life, broke forth upon the world, the pathless river of death was traversed by a roadway of light, across which Jesus passed. Since He has passed that way we need not fear. By a wonderful sacrifice the dark way to the tomb has been illuminated, and death is but a tunnel, glory lit with the effulgence of the bright world beyond. What a thought. God be praised for the glorious privilege of dying. Take courage fainting heart. Pause and think, proud man. There will come a day for all, when earth's pain and sorrows, her pleasures and enjoyments will be sunken beneath one common sea; and from the midst of the dark flood will arise the sun of God's glory and brightness, to send into every fainting heart a ray of everlasting bliss. Our loads of toil, sorrow misery and sin, borne through this world of woe, will at last be taken from our shoulders, and we be permitted to enjoy one glorious, never ending Easter morn in the bosom of God. Blessed Saturday night! The anniversary of freedom for a world! Sweet emblem of that grand final day when the white-robed hosts of Heaven shall stand upon the battlements of paradise, and welcome, with pæans of gladness, the redeemed of earth to places in that elysium of light, before the blazing throne of the majesty of God. And so let us not shudder or look with dread at these quiet graves, but remember with a feeling of ecestatic joy that when their peaceful hush is broken in the thrilling shout of Resurrection's morn —the glorious Easter in Heaven—we will come forth like this same, dear, sweet, crucified Saviour, triumphant over the King of Terrors, and with all the sombre cerements of the grave melting in the brilliant flood light of Endless Day, our features will gleam with the radiance of blissful immortality as we shout with seraphic voice the anthems of the saved.

A Flat Contradiction.

Some one has told you that your catarrh is incurable. It is not so. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure it. It is pleasant to use and it always does its work thoroughly. We have yet to hear of a case in which it did not accomplish a cure when faithfully used. Catarrh is a disease which it is dangerous to neglect. A certain remedy is at your command. Avail yourself of it before the complaint assumes a more serious form. All druggists.

YELLOW FEVER.

Surgeon General Hamilton's Views as to the Situation in Florida.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—An Associated Press reporter saw Surgeon General John B. Hamilton to-day, and had a talk with him concerning the case of yellow fever reported at Sanford, Florida, and a possibility of a spread of the disease or recurrence of the epidemic of last year. Said Dr. Hamilton:

"I learned of the appearance of yellow fever at Sanford from two sources yesterday—from a special agent who has been traversing the State since the subsidence of the plague of 1888, and from Dr. R. P. Daniel, president of the State Board of Health. This fact shows that there will be no attempt made to conceal the presence of the disease as was done last year, and such being the case, the danger is largely reduced. The fear and panice excited by the knowledge that the true condition of affairs is being suppressed does much more hart., in my judgment, than the fever itself."

"What are the probabilities of another outbreak of the disease this year?"

"I shall not be surprised if there were a considerable number of cases. The danger chiefly lies in those towns and cities which escaped the plague last year. In places that were visited then there is a large proportion of acclimated residents who have had the fever and are therefore safe; and who can remain to nurse and care for any who are sick, that the disease may comparatively be easily controlled."

"Are you prepared to manage any outbreak should it occur?"

"Yes, much better than ever before. Camp Perry is in such condition that it can be put in operation in twenty-four hours. But it will be much better if we do not have to fit up a refugee camp. To do this would tend to create a panic in surrounding towns, and that is the most difficult thing for us to control. Already I have received messages of inquiry showing an alarmed state of public feeling for which there is no foundation. Ever since the outbreak of 1888 ended this office has kept close sanitary watch over Florida, tracing every report of the existence of fever; and this case at Sanford is the only one I have heard of from a reliable source. Since the epidemic of last year Florida has organized a State Board of Health by Legislative enactment providing heavy penalties for violations of regulations of the Board; and these regulations, which were promulgated on the 6th of this month, are admirably adapted for carrying out the purposes of the act. The Board is made effective by the imposition of a tax, receipts from which are set apart as a fund to be used for health purposes of the State.

"Where is Sanford, the seat of the present outbreak?"

"It is about one hundred miles almost directly East of Tampa, in central Florida. I can readily account for the presence of the disease there. It is only six miles from Enterprise, across the lakes, where the fever raged last year, and there was uninterrupted intercourse between the places. After the fever was subdued an attempt was made at disinfecting the place, but it was not thorough by any means; nothing like the house to house inspection, and destruction of infected material, carried on at Jacksonville by this department. But after the government ceased to pay for articles destroyed, the destruction ceased; people would not give up their property unless paid for it, and in a great measure the inspection stopped. Sanford was visited by yellow fever in 1887, when there were 150 cases there, the presence of which was concealed by the authorities. That is a thing most to be feared, a suppression of facts. If publication can only be secured apprehension and terror are allayed, and the greater part of the difficulty of controlling the disease is overcome."

Dr. Hamilton left Washington this evening for Jacksonville to confer with the State Board of Health in regard to measures for preventing the introduction or spread of the contagious disease.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., April 24. Dr. Daniel, President of the State Board of Health, has declared that the death of Mrs. Chas. Demont, of Sanford, was from yellow fever. She had been sick two weeks, and her health had been bad for months. The case was not of a virulent or infectious type, but was sporadic. There are no other cases in the family and the house is isolated, and all precautions have been taken. Sanford has voluntarily embargoed her people from leaving for fifteen days, and has prohibited traffic from 5 p. m. to 7.30 a. m.

STATE NEWS.

☞ REUNION OF THE OLD EIGHTEENTH REGIMENT.—A movement is on foot to have a reunion of the survivors of the Eighteenth Regiment of North Carolina State Troops of the Confederate States Army. A great many of the survivors live up the Carolina Central Railroad, and there are others in easy reach of the city, so that it is anticipated that a sufficient number of old veterans can be gotton together to make a pleasant occasion of it. This gallant old regiment, we believe, has never had a reunion since they laid down their arms, and many of the survivors are now anxious to assemble together once more with their old comrades. It is proposed to have the reunion at the Hammocks during the encampment of volunteer Statetroops this sumer.—Wilmington Messenger.

☞ THE WINSTON—HIGH POINT SURVEY.—Prof. J. L. Ludlow left Winston yesterday to make the survey of the projected railroad from High Point to Winston, via Kernersville and will complete the survey in a week or ten days. He will then make a report as to the approximate cost of grading to the Winston-Salem Chambers of Commerce and that body in conjunction with representatives from Kernersville and High Point, will decide whether or not to accept the proposition made by Col. A. B. Andrews. Col. Andrews proposes to iron and equip the road if Winston-Salem, Kernersville and High Point will grade and cross-tie it.—Winston Sentinel.

☞ We are told by persons driving about town that they find children, both white and colored, playing in the road, playfully darting across the road in front of vehicles and standing in the way till horses are almost on them, then running off, as if to show how much danger they can risk and yet escape.—Gastonia Gazette.

☞ SPECIAL NOTICE TO THE UNIVERSITY ALUMNI.—In accordance with the numerous suggestions it has been decided to abandon the plan of separate class dinners at the approaching Centennial Reunion. There will be a dinner prepared for the entire body of Alumni and Trustees, spread in the Chapel on Wednesday June 5. On this occasion the members of each class will sit together. It is necessary that every trustee and alumnus intending to be present on this occasion, send his name at once to John Manning, chairman, Chapel Hill, N. C., in order that suitable accommodations may be provided.

☞ NEW STONE QUARRY IN ANSON.—Messrs. Grant & Egan, jetty contractors of Charleston, S. C., have been in Wadesboro and vicinity several days prospecting for stone to be used in the construction of the jetties in Charleston harbor, and we learn have leased for twenty years several acres of land belonging to the estate of the late Risden Bennett, Esq., situated three miles from town on the Cheraw railroad. The stone found on the land leased is what is known as bastard granite and is there in great quantities. — Wadesboro Messenger.

☞ The whistle of the H. P. R. A. & S. Railroad will sound in Ashboro May 25th, 1889. Those who are in business here must be on the alert now. We have room enough here for you all.—Ashboro Courier.

☞ Gen. Roger A. Pryor and his friends are naturally very indignant over the statement that he deserted the Confederate cause during the war.—Durham Plant.

Fingers Came Off.

My little son, five years old, was afflicted with a disease for which the doctors had no name. The nails came off his fingers, and the fingers came off his hands up to the middle joint. For three years he has suffered dreadfully, and has taken quantities of medicine. He is now getting well under treatment of Swift's Specific. JOHN DEIHL.
Peru, Ind., Jan. 12, 1889.

Remarkable Case.

For two years I had rheumatism so bad that it disabled me for work, and confined me to my bed for a whole year, during which time I could not even raise my hands to my head, and for three months could not raise myself in bed; was reduced in flesh from 192 to 86 lbs.; was treated by best physicians only to grow worse. Finally I took Swift's Specific, and soon began to improve. After a while was at my work, and for the past five months have been as well as I ever was—all from the effects of Swift's Specific. COHN RAY.

Swift's Specifi is a purely vegetable remedy, contains no Mercury, Potash or other mineral, is harmless to the most delicate infant. Our treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases will be mailed free.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years Doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucus surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. THE BIRTH DAY OF THE REPUBLIC.

Notably among the greatest events in the history of the world was the Centennial Anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington in New York City last Tuesday, as the first President of the United States—the centennial birth day of the grandest Republic the sun has ever shown upon. Flags of national colors should have been unfurled upon the gentle breezes of spring time from every house top throughout this broad land of ours, and this epoch in our history indelibly inscribed upon the tablets of our memory. How much we have to be thankful for! and stranger still, how few realize this solemn fact.

Besides being one of the most powerful countries on the globe, and one of the most enlightened nations of the earth, we have a country in which monarchy and oligarchy can no longer exist, and in their stead the will of the people has been substituted and to-day reigns supreme. Even the chief ruler of more than sixty millions of people is elected by a free ballot and a fair count, where every man, woman and child without regard to "race, color or previous condition of servitude," is protected by the strong arm of the law; a country that more than one hundred years ago shook from its neck the yoke of tyranny and boldly defied the British Crown—a country whose flag is entitled to respect upon the high seas of commerce and at the hands of all nations.

Yes, we are proud of our country, and no less proud of the glorious deeds of our ancestry, which stand as monuments to their memory.

In all there have been twenty-five Presidential elections held in the United States since the inauguration of GEN. WASHINGTON, and history teaches us that we have filled these terms of office by electing thereto eighteen different men (not including the present incumbent, whose term is the 26th), four of whom died in office; Harrison, Taylor, Lincoln and Garfield. Seven were elected to second terms, namely: Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Lincoln and Grant.

Only once during this period of one hundred years has there been a failure on the part of the people, through the electoral college, to make an election. This occurred in 1824, when no candidate received a majority of the electoral votes. The House of Representatives, as required by law, prseceded to choose a President from the three highest candidates, each State having one vote. These three were Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams and William H. Crawford. Although Jackson had fifteen more electoral votes than Adams, the latter was elected by the House, through Henry Clay, who was the fourth candidate, giving his strength to him. The old Federalist party had gone to pieces a short while before this time and been absorbed by the Republican party, which became divided into two wings, the "strict" and the „loose" constructionists. Jackson belonged to the former, Adams and Clay to the latter.

Since the formation of our government Presidential candidates have been put in the field by upwards of nineteen different political parties. Only six of these, however, have been successful in electing their candidates to the Presidency. These were the two original parties, the Federal and the anti-Federal or Republican, the Whig, the Democratic and the Republican of the present day and the present Democratic. Several of these were the same party under different names. In fact we have never really had but two successful national parties, which may be distinguished into the strict and the loose constructionists. To the former belong the Anti-Federal and the two Democratic; to the latter the Federal, the Whig and the present Republican.

The Federal party which controlled the Government during the first three terms went to pieces during Monroe's first term. This was the last time they put a candidate in the field. The anti-Federal gained control of the government in 1800, by the election of Jefferson, and held it down to 1824. At this election there were four candidates in the field—all Anti-Federalists or Republicans—whence this campaign has been nicknamed "the scrub race for the Presidency." Just after this election the Republican party divided, part of it including the old Federalists, formed the National Republican with John Quincy Adams as its candidate in 1828. This was the loose constitutionalists wing. The other wing took the name, Democrat with Old Hickory in the lead. By 1836 the former party had changed its name to that of Whig. Then it was Whig and Democrat until the former went to pieces in the fifties, declaring as part of their platform in in the campaign of 1856, that they "had no new platform to establish, but were content to rest where their fathers rested," so they were gathered to their fathers, and up sprang the present Republican party with Fremont as Presidential candidate, and now represented in the Presidency by the grandson of the next to the last Whig President.

Thus it can be seen, says the Durham Plant, that we really have never had but two great parties in the country since the foundation of the government. The two parties of to-day can be traced back by their opposing tenets and principles, through their various names, to the two parties that divided the country in the days of our first President.

OAKLAHOMA.

This new-born Utopia of the West has been remarkable in many respects. It is a territory containing about 23,658,654 acres of exceedingly fertile lands, and belongs to the United States. It is bounded on the North by Kansas and on the South by Texas. It has run more people crazy, and cost more lives probably than any new territory ever opened up to settlers. People have rushed into this new pasture by the hundreds and thousands, making everything else subordinate to Oaklahoma. For instance, Guthrie, the future capital of this new territory, stands far above any quick rising city on record. In one afternoon it was an insignificant station in the backwoods, and before the next it was a city of 15,000 inhabitants. Within six hours of the beginning of its existence the new city elected a mayor and city council, polling almost ten thousand votes. Even before the time it had laid off a number of streets it had in operation a bank and other business institutions. Thus we have a faint idea of the progress of the age in which we live.

A JUST REWARD.

There now! Who struck Billy Patterson? Mr. DUDLEY says the President has soured and alienated Senator QUAY beyond hope of reconciliation, and has thereby set an example to dry up the sources of party enthusiasm, break the bonds of party organization and destroy the hope of reward for even the greatest party services. Angry and disappointed Republicans are now saying quietly that HARRISON is doing all that one man can do to ruin the party and pave the way to its certain defeat in the next Presidential contest. CLEVELAND, they say, with all his genius for giving offense to influential Democrats, did not alienate as many members of his own party in six months as HARRISON has done in less than two. Hence Mr. DUDLEY of the "blocks of five" fame says he don't "take dinner at the white house as might be expected.' It's an old saying but none the less true, that "chickens will come home to roost," and one of these days the people and politicians will find out that there is an allwise and omnipresent God who rules the universe and even numbers the hairs on our heads; a just God—and one who disdains such brazen vice, corruption and fraud as Mr. DUDLEY stands guilty of to-day. Mr. DUDLEY has sown the seed of bad deeds by his "blocks of five" racket, and now he is paying dearly for it; just as he should. We are taught by that great and good Book of all Books that the worldly man is oftentimes allowed to flourish even like the green bay tree, but suddenly he is called to give an account. He is put in the scales and found wanting. This is the case with Mr. DUDLEY. He has been allowed to flourish with his fraud and bribery in corrupting the ballot-box, but now public opinion has forced his first-mate, in whose interest his best efforts were directed, to scorn him and to take no cognizance of his existence or whereabouts. What a reward! Let others profit by his experience and guard against such rocky shoals in the future.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

BISMARCK has taken the back track on the Samoan question.

AND Mr. DUDLEY don't "take dinner at the White House as might be expected," eh? Tra-la-la.

BOULANGER was received in London on the 25th, with mingled cheers and hoots, at Charing Cross station.

IF there is any meaning to Mr. CLEVELAND'S denying the statement that he "would not accept the Presidency in 1892," the "man of destiny" is still in the ring.

THE West Virginia "muddle" still hangs fire. The Gubernatorial Committee met to examine the depositions of FLEMMING and GOFF on the 25th, but adjourned till May 8th.

GEN. CLINTON B. FISK, the cold water candidate for the Presidency last year, still clings to his flag and emphatically denies the rumor that he expects to go back to the Republican party.

THAT was rather an apparently chilly welcome extended Sir OLIVER MOWATT, Premier of the Province of Ontario of the Dominion of Canada, by the Senate last week, and the distinguished representative of the British Crown once more heard the American Eagle scream.

SENATOR RAINS blandly tells the New York Herald "that the faster a train runs the safer the people are," which moves Mr. BENNETT to remark: "What a beautiful thought! Who would have believed it? It is the most original idea we ever heard of and ought to be patented and have a trade mark at once."

JAY GOULD'S health is failing him. The World says he is by no means so well or strong a man as he was a month ago. At that time he felt himself to be in excellent physical condition and started to go down to his office every day. The result was that he soon began to lose ground so far as his health was concerned, and his daily visit to the Western Union Building has ceased, and it is reported that a doctor goes to his house at least twice a day.

FOR the statesmen of the American Revolution have taken their place once for all among the greatest political instructors of the world. GEORGE WASHINGTON was their acknowledged and illustrious head, and to him and them I have long felt that I owed no trivial part of my own public education. Long, without limit of length, may that Union flourish, under the blessing and favor of God, with the foundation of which their names are inseparably associated.—W. E. Gladstone.

"THE apparent danger," remarks the New York Herald, "of a yellow fever epidemic becoming general and unusually fatal in the far South this summer is seriously enhanced by the present and prospective meteorological conditions over the country. The seasonal temperature have been since December exceptionally high. Moreover there was little or no decidedly cold weather in Florida last winter. If there is any connection between atmospheric conditions and the development of yellow fever germs, we cannot hope for a speedy improvement in Florida's sanitary prospects."

FROM DOWN THE LINE.

A Breezy Letter from Bennettsville—Jim McLaurin Launched into Eternity at the end of a Rope—Farmers Plowing Cotton, &c.

Reported for the Observer.]

At our February term of court Jim McLaurin (colored) was convicted of a villanious assault upon a lady near Blehiem, in this county, and sentenced to be hung on April 26th, which was last Friday. Every effort possible was made by his council to save his life, but nothing could be done, so on last Friday he paid the just penalty of his crime. He plead innocent the whole time until the day before the execution when he confessed the whole thing. Friday about 11 o'clock he was brought out from his cell and his death warrant read to him. When asked if he had anything to say he said "No." He was perfectly calm and altogether careless of his fate. He was led to the scaffold (which is in the jail) and mounted it without assistance. The black cap was put on—the rope adjusted and at a few minutes past eleven he was launched into eternity. This is the second hanging we have had here within a year, and the third that has ever been upon that gallows, which has been there for years. It seems that crime is increasing or else the people are becoming more zealous in its prosecution—the latter we hope.

Crops are looking unusually well considing the late spring and changeableness of the weather. Most farmers about done planting and some cotton has received its first plowing.

Many of our citizens expected to be in Fayetteville this week attending the Pearson meeting, as he is not to be there we will have to wait but will go all the "same" when he does come.

Col. C. S. McCall has commenced work on his new mamoth store, when finished it will be the wonder of the town and one of the largest in the county.

Our friend, Dr. David, who was run over by an unmanagmable horse at the tounament some weeks ago, is slowly recovering. Mr. T. Yarboro, depot agent here and Dr. J. B. Jennings compose our sick list. Dr. J., who is the father of your townsman Mr. Jennings is quite sick and not expected to recover. Mr. Edward and wife are on a visit to him now. K.

Items About Wade.

Reported for the Observer.]

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, Wade Hall was well filled with people on the evening of the 16th inst to behold the closing exercises of Miss Janie McDougald's school of this place. The children acted real well, which was an evidence of the good training of their teacher It was in every respect a first-class concert, such as is rarely given free. Miss Janie is much liked as a teacher here and this was the close of her third term of teaching at this place.

Farmers are about done planting corn and are now planting their cotton.

A hail storm passed through this section Sunday P. M., the earth being almost totally covered with the hail.

The present prospect of a plentiful fruit crop here this year is good, it being uninjared by cold.

On yesterday, (Sunday) A. M., Rev. D. D. McBryde preached a soul-stirring sermon on the subject of foreign missions to a house of well-filled pews, his text being from 1st John, 3rd chapter, and 8th verse.

Fayetteville, by a Six Year Old Boy.

Wadesboro Messenger.]

We have received the following letter from master Edmund Pemberton, the young son of the late John D. Pemberton, of Wadesboro:

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., March 26.—I am just six years old, but I thought I would write you something about my home. Fayetteville is right on the Cape Fear river, and 8,000 people live here. We have a big school with ever so many hundred scholars. I go to it and stand the first in my grade. We have five big churches.

There are nearly 200 scholars in our Sunday School (St. John's). We are going to have street cars. We have electric lights. They are building a big tabernacle for Mr. Pearson. It is big enough to hold 2,500 people. I hear some of the Wadesboro people are coming to hear him. I hope I will see them. I love Wadesboro and remember a heap of my friends there. When I grow a little bigger I want to go back there. I read your paper, and like to see the news from home. I hope you will print this letter.

EDMUND J. PEMBERTON.

The Canadian Extradition Bill.

New York Herald.]

In the form in which it has passed the House at Ottawa, Professor Weldon's Extradition bill will not interfere with either the boodlers now in Canada or those who may seek asylum there hereafter. For the retroactive clause of the measure was stricken out and bribery is not included in the list of extraditable offences.

During the discussion in the House there was a strong sentiment developed to the effect that an offender surrendered for one offence should not be tried for another. On this point the practice of the American courts is fixed.

Whether a fugitive given up for one offence may be tried for another was the subject of earnest diplomatic correspondence between Secretary Fish and Lord Derby in the Winslow case, and was long a mooted question in our courts. Mr. Fish maintained and Lord Deby denied the right of trial on a charge other than that for which the fugitive had been extradited. Our State and lower federal courts divided on the point.

The question is now settled by a recent decision of the United States Supreme Court. A man charged with murder was surrendered to this country by England on that charge. When the prisoner was brought back it was found that the evidence would not sustain a charge of murder and he was arraigned for manslaughter. His counsel raised the point that he could not be tried for manslaughter, and carried the case to the United States Supreme Court. That tribunal, in an elaborate opinion, held that as the prisoner had not been surrendered on a charge of manslaughter he could not be tried for that crime until he had been released and given a reasonable opportunity to leave the country.

IS MR. CLEVELAND HEDGING?

Charlotte Chronicle.]

When Mr. Cleveland passed through Goldsboro on his way North from his visit to Cuba, the editor of the Goldsboro Headlight accepted the ex-President's invitation to ride with the party as far as he could. Mr. Roscower, the editor, accepted the pressing invitation, and rode with Mr. Cleveland and party for two hours.

During that ride the Democratic ex-President became unreserved, and spoke freely of his intentions. Among other things, according to Mr. Roscower, Mr. Cleveland declared he would not accept another nomination for the Presidency. This determination of Mr. Cleveland was reported in the Headlight by its editor, Mr. Roscower.

The Charleston World, a protection Democratic paper, wrote to Mr. Cleveland an l asked him if the interview as reported in the Headlight was correct. The ex President on arriving in New York found that he had been appointed a commissioner to condemn land for New York City public purposes, at a salary of $4 per day. Although he at once rejected this, nevertheless, the tender seems to have created anew in his manly bosom, a yearning for the flesh pots of the White House, for he forthwith writes in reply to the Charleston World, as follows:

"I think it is very unprofitable to attempt to run down the errors and misrepresentations of a newspaper interview.

I return the clipping you send me purporting to contain a part of an interview with me during my recent trip to Florida. You ask me to say whether or not it is correct.

I shall content myself in this case with hereby saying that the report of the interview contained in the clipping, is very inaccurate and misleading.

Yours truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

"Inaccurate and misleading" is very unsatisfactory. Was Mr. Roscower "inaccurate" in reporting Mr. Cleveland as out of the Presidential possibilities, or "misleading in saying the great Democratic ex-President said the New York World is not a Democratic paper?

Mr. Cleveland's denial must be made more explicit, or Mr. Roscower will be accorded the palm.

The Charleston World seems to think Mr. Cleveland is a candidate for President. It says:

"In the light of the recent prominence which has been given to Cleveland in New York, and the continuous linking of his name with the Presidential nomination in 1892, we regard as strikingly significant this denial on his part of the truth of an interview in which occurs the positive statement that he would not accept a renomination to the Presidency four years hence."

A Striking Contrast—Iron Industries North and South.

Chattanooga Correspondence Manufacturers' Record.]

PIG IRON.—The condition of the market at the present time is quite difficult to describe. Judging from the market reports that emanate from the principal trade centers of the North, there appears to exist an atmosphere of general despondency and mistrust regarding the future, and in no instance does there appear to be an exception to this in any section of the North, There appears to be a general expression coming forth from all who are interested in the production of pig iron that the bottom has simply dropped out entirely out of sight, and those who would now venture to put their money in new plants would be considered by the business community as insane and entirely off from their base. Should the present condition of the market remain any length of time, there can be no doubt but what many of the stocks now moving in the North but will go out of blast, and many of them never go in again, in consequence of being of antiquated make and unfavorable location; but in the Southern iron districts how different are the condition of things. At the present time there is not a stack, (excepting those which have gone out for repairs) in the entire Southern district but what is blowing away to its utmost capacity, and are all making some money, and further than this, there are none, so far as can be heard from, that ascertain any idea of blowing out. Those that are out are being put in repairs as fast as practicable, and when completed will go in again with increased output. During the past few months there have been a number of new plants inaguratad and many of them commenced, and, so far as can be heard from, there is no intimation from their projectors that they will hold up at all in pushing them to completion. The question of laying out new towns as manufacturing centers through the South is to-day being discussed and acted upon more than ever, and at the present time millions of dollars are being expended between this place and Birmingham on the line of the road between here and there, in opening up both coal and ore mines and locating new towns, many of which have already commenced great manufacturing enterprises. Only last year the place where Fort Payne now stands was but a cotton field and now it is a place of 3,000 to 4,000 inhabitants and has a large hotel, opera house and several large and important buildings going up. Land that 2 years ago could be got for $5 to $10 per acre is now being sold at hundreds of dollars per front foot; besides this before the present year is closed a large furnace and rolling mill will be commenced. This place is not an exception—four other places on the line of this road are in the hands of men of large means who will soon develop them into growing towns and manufacturing centers for which this valley is particularly favorable, being as it is a very fertile valley enfolosed on each side with mountains covered with fine timber and containing boundless veins of both iron ore and coal.

The C. F. & Y. Railroad.

Wilmington Messenger.]

Col. Roger P. Atkinson, chief engineer of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad has been in the city a few days inspecting the work on the Point Peter terminus. The work on the wharves is progressing very well, and by the 1st of May they will be completed. Over four hundred piles have been driven for the wharves on Northeast river, and eight hundred feet of piling has been driven over the rice field for the main line and the stringers, caps and cross ties put on.

There will be eight terminal tracks running from a point opposite the old Point Peter Rice Mills down to the warehouse on the wharf. The timbers are now being cut for the warehouse, and as soon as practicable work will be commenced on the building. It will be two hundred and eleven feet in length and one hundred in width.

Shad fishing closes this season on the 10th inst.

Abe Holliday's house in Redbone was burned down yesterday.

Cotton-planting is now the order of the day throughout the county.

No town in the State can boast of handsomer soda fountains than the drug stores of Fayetteville.

Lauchlin McDonald has been appointed J. P. for Rockfish township by His Excellency, Gov. Fowle.

Our popular druggist, Mr. H. R. Horne, has been appointed a member of the State Board of Pharmacy.

Mr. H. B. Fuller enlivened things on our streets Monday by driving four fine grey horses to a dog cart.

Mr. Yarborough, depot agent for the C. F. & Y. V. R. R. at Bennettsville, died suddenly with heart disease Tuesday.

A cordial invitation is extended our friends from the country to join with us on the 10th and fitly celebrate memorial day.

The Richmond county Farmers' Alliance have decided to build a cotton seed oil mill at Hector, four miles west of Laurinburg.

In view of the delay in getting some of our cuts made, the illustrated Trade issue has been delayed but will be out in a few days.

Native strawberries have made their appearance in the Fayetteville market and retail at 25 cents per quart, with ready sales.

Messrs. A. J. Cook & Co. received during the past week two orders from New York for their celebrated rheumatic remedies.

Capt. Campbell has so far recovered from his recent accident as to be able to resume his duties as conductor between here and Mt. Airy.

The centennial birthday of the United States was observed in this city by holding services in the different churches and closing the banks and postoffice.

Beaver Creek will vote on the first Monday in May for Mayor and Board of Aldermen for the first time, the same having been incorporated by the last General Assembly.

A colored man named Sam Donald died on the train between Greensboro and Walnut Cove, Tuesday, while the train was in motion. It was supposed to be a case of heart disease as he died without a struggle.

Military Commissions have been issued from headquarters to E. L. Gilmer as Captain of Company B., 3rd Regiment at Greensboro, and to W. W. Motz, as Captain of Company B., 4th Regiment at Lincolnton.

Superior Court next week, Judge Gilmer presiding. The calendar of cases was published in our last issue. Those who have failed to respond to our "Important Circular" sent out some time ago, will please call around and see us.

Many thanks to Mr. W. Drewery Smith for the first basket of strawberries of the season. They are of the "Hoffman" kind, and the finest we have seen this year. Mr. S. also tells us that he is making fine progress with his truck farm near the city.

The C. F. & Y. V. shops here are constantly adding to their rolling stock and have just completed 25 new flat cars and have in course of construction 25 new box cars. Besides this they have just overhauled and painted 4 passenger cars.

We have been shown a check for $1,750 issued by the North Carolina Home Insurance Company of Raleigh, to Mr. W. L. Williams of this county, the same being the amount carried by that Company on Senator Williams' cotton gin, which burned in February last.

The "captions to the Acts passed by the last General Assembly of North Carolina," found on the 4th page this week, consists in some valuable and interesting reading matter to every reader of the OBSERVER, and should be read closely every week until the entire list is completed.

Capt. C. Patrick is shipping asparagus every day. So far he has shipped about 500 bunches. His last returns were $6.00 per dozen.—Clinton Caucasian.

The procession will be formed at the Cumberland House (Confederate Hospital) at 4 o'clock P. M. Move at 4.30 down Hay Street to Market House, up Green Street to Court House, thence to cemetery.

The Ladies' Memorial Association earnestly request that all business houses close at 4 P. M., and that the sextons of the various churches toll their bells while the procession is moving.

The ladies of the town are requested and expected to assist the Committee on Decoration. This Committee will receive the floral tributes at the Armory of the F. I. L. I. during the day.

A CORDIAL INVITATION.—The OBSERVER extends a warm and cordial invitation to its many readers in Cumberland and the adjoining counties, to visit Fayetteville during the series of meetings to be held here for the ensuing two weeks under the auspices of the Rev. Mr. Pearson, commencing next Sunday. Preparations have been made on an extensive scale for the accomodation of a large number and the gates of the Capital City of the Upper Cape Fear stand ajar to all the world to join with us in singing praises to God's Holy name and offering up prayers for the salvation of souls, and the upbuilding of His Kingdom on earth. Let us unite in returning thanks to an allwise and most merciful God for his watchful care over us in the past, and ask on bended knees with a heart that overflows with love for our Savior, for an out-pouring of His Divine spirit upon this entire community; that many who are wandering astray like the lost sheep from the scattered fold, may return. God has said, "Ask and ye shall receive; knock and it shall be opened unto you." Therefore let the followers of Christ knock at the door of the hovel and the palace alike and see that all are given a cordial invitation to hear the word of God expounded, for there is great rejoicing in Heaven over the salvation of one single soul. Christians, let your light so shine that others may behold your good works and follow your example.

"By me," Christ says, "if any man enter in, he shall be saved." "Any man," remember, rich or poor, learned or ignorant "Any man," He says, whatsoever his former character—how many soever his sins—how ever hard his heart, if he enter by the door—if he truly come to Christ, he shall be saved.

IMPORTANT SALES.—The property advertised in the last four issues of the OBSERVER for taxes, as prescribed by law, will be sold at the Court house door next Monday unless the same be paid in to Sheriff Fisher on or before Saturday night the 4th. In this matter it is due Capt. Fisher to say that in pursuing the course he has, he has simply obeyed the mandates of the law, which he promised to execute in good faith at the time of his induction into office. When the people fail to comply therewith Sheriff Fisher is not to blame.

There is also another important sale of land to take place on the same day—the lands advertised by Wm. McQueen, administrator of Neill McQueen, late sheriff, to satisfy taxes for 1884-'85-'86. Taxes and death are two things certain and unless the taxes are paid on the lands spoken of above they will certainly be sold next Monday.

ANNUAL MEETING I. O. O. F.—The Annual meeting of the Grand Lodge Independent Oorder of Odd Fellows of North Carolina, will convene in this city on the 14th inst. A warm welcome, such as only the good people of the Capital City of the Upper Cape Fear are noted for, will be extended the visiting guests. The Odd Fellows of Raleigh will run an excursion to this city during the session and a royal time is in store for all who attend. The Pearson Meetings will also be in progress at the same time.

N. C. DENTAL ASSOCIATION.—The North Carolina Dental Association meets this year in Greensboro, June 25th. Dr. Turner, the President, says that during the session of the association, which will continue three days, a dental infirmary will be opened at which a corpse of clinical experts of this State and distinguished practitioners from New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore will place their skill at the disposal of such patients as may attend.

ANNUAL SERMON.—Rev. Joseph Wheeler, of this city, will preach the annual sermon at the closing exercises of Jonesboro High School, May 22. Speaking of Mr. Wheeler's ability; the Concord Times is pleased to say: "Those who listen to it will be treated to a discourse learned, full of thought, and couched in the purest language—'English undefiled.'"

Henderson Deanes, charged with the murder of Mr. Cameron, of Kyser, was acquitted.

Mr. John D. Roddick, of Boston, and A. D. Brown, of Wilmington, are in the city and a change in the name and style of one of the leading firms here is in contemplation.

Revs. Dr. Hill, of Floral College and D. D. McBryde, of Little River Academy, passed up the road Monday en route to Farmville, Va., to be present at the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of Union Theological Seminary, which met there Tuesday.

FAYETTEVILLE'S WAY OF DOING THINGS.—Who says Fayetteville is not coming out of the kinks? Two flat cars were built at the C. F. & Y. V. shops here last week in one day between the hours of 11 o'clock A. M. and 6 o'clock P. M. This is a specimen of the way Fayetteville does things.

LARGE SHIPMENTS.—Messrs. McMillan Bros. are having an unusually large run in the manufacture and sale of their celebrated turpentine distilleries this season throughout this State, South Carolina and Georgia. They made a large shipment to Conway, S. C., last Friday, which consisted of 2 stills with a capacity of 50 and 35 barrels each.

SPECIAL TRAIN.—Arrangements are being made for running a special train from Bennettsville to this city on the 10th inst., in order to give everybody an opportunity to be present at the Memorial services. It will also remain over until after the Pearson meeting closes on the evening of the same day in order to give everybody an opportunity to hear this wonderful preacher.

GRAND TIME.—The Guilford Celebration bids fair at this writing to be a grand affair. Senator Vance will be the orator of the day, and the Guilford Battle Ground Continentals in the uniform of 1781, knee pants, coats, cocked hats and plumes will prove an interesting feature. A special train will be run from Bennettsville and the fare from here will be $3.50 for the round trip, leaving here on the the morning of the 4th and returning that night.

NEW RAILS FOR THE C. F. & Y. V. R. R.—The Wilmington Messenger of last Saturday reports the arrival in that city of the Schooner Addie B. Bacon, from Philadelphia, with a cargo of steel rails for the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad. This is the first installment of rails for the new line between Fayetteville and Wilmington, and from now on the rails will be shipped there as fast as the track laying can progress. It is further understood that tracklaying will commence about the 15th inst

TELL YOUR NAME.—Warrants have been issued by the State Auditor at Raleigh to Mrs. Flora Ellis, Mrs. Mary Cheek and Mrs. Nancy Kelly, of Cumberland, for pensions and the same were forwarded to the post office here, where they remained uncalled for 30 days after which time they were returned to Raleigh. If the parties named above are still living and will call at this office or at the office of the clerk of the Superior Court they will learn some thing to their interest, to the extent of dollars and cents.

A GENEROUS TENDER.—That big-hearted, whole souled and patriotic Julius A. Gray, President of the C. F. & Y. V. Rail road Company, has very generously tendered the use of his private car to the committee for the transportation of Ex-President Jefferson Davis and family to and from the celebration here in November, and the Committee will listen to nothing short of Mr. Davis' acceptance of the invitation to be orator of the day. Get ready, gentlemen to be with us on that memorable occasion for we propose to outrival the recent celebration in New York city.

TO THE J. P.'S.—The attention of the newly appointed Justices of the Peace for Cumberland, and the adjoining counties as well, is called to the fact that chapter 288 of the laws of 1885 provides "that all appointments of Justices of the Peace by the General Assembly shall be void, unless the persons so appointed shall qualify within three months thereafter." The appointment of the Justices by the last General Assembly was made on the eleventh day of March 1889. Notices have been and will be sent out by the Clerk of the Superior Court of this county to the persons so appointed, and they must therefore qualify on or before the eleventh day of June, 1889, or their appointment will be void. And all unfilled appointments thus occurring must be filled by appointment by the Governor, as prescribed by law.

IN MEMORIAM.

MABEL DAINGERFIELD.

"There is no death, the stars go down, to Rise on some fairer shore,
And bright in Heaven's jeweled crown,
They shine forever more."

On March the 30th, 1889, MABEL, only daughter of Captain and Mrs. R. L. Daingerfield, after a brief illness and notwithstanding the skill of Dr. J. H. Tucker and the unceasing ministrations of her devoted parents, and two loving aunts, and the constant care of sympathizing friends, passed from sickness to death, and from death to endless joy.

Her little hands which were so beautiful here, are even now sweeping the strings of some golden harp, in that

"Mansion above,
Whose timbers were grown in the garden of love."

We know this must be so, for did not the loving Savior illumine the world of sin, more than eighteen hundred years ago with that glorious promise:

"Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

It seems hard that one who has so long been one of the idols of her home should be taken away, it leaves such a blank, such a cruel blank, but the ways of God are past finding out, and the pain may turn to gladness, and the darkness into light.

"If we could push ajar the gates of life,
And stand within, and all God's workings see,
We could interpret all this doubt and strife,
And for each mystery find there a key.
But not to-day, then be content poor heart,
God's plans like lilies pure and white, unfold,
We must not tear the close shut leaves apart,
Time will reveal the calyes of gold."

Mabel was a child in years, being only ten years and seven months old, but she possessed many of the characteristics which adorn glorious womanhood.

She had a fine intellect, extraordinarily so. One looking upon the noble expanse of her little forehead, and the classic outlines of her sweet face, as she lay in death upon a bed of violets, her favorite flower, so typical of her in their beauty and purity; one familiar with the tender emotions of her gentle loving heart; her calm self-possession; her remarkable conversational powers, so accurate, so sensible, so sweet; her intense love for little children, and their love for her, and especially her great protecting love for her little brother Campbell which was beautiful in its intensity, one knowing her as she was would have said, here lies a child whom if God had willed it, would have developed into a good and noble woman.

How beautifully and truly another has described little Mabel:

"She was cast in so slight and exquisite a mold, so mild and gentle, so pure and beautiful, that earth seemed not her element, nor its rough creatures her fit companions."

Many do not care to remember their loved ones as they appeared in death but as they were in health and strength, but those who loved Mabel may remember her in death as sweetly as in life, for as she lay dead one could but say, "No sleep so calm and beautiful, so free from trace of pain, so fair to look upon. She seems a creature fresh from the hand of God, and waiting for the breath of life, not one who has lived add suffered death."

And to her father and mother and those who lever her so dearly, who now miss her so sadly, and mourn her so grievously, who feel that no more on earth will they hear the gentle footsteps, and her low sweet voice, that no more will they feel her tender clinging embrace, and warm kiss of affection, that no more can they look forward to her becoming a lovely and intelligent woman, reflecting honor upon them and their care and devotion, and dispensing happiness like golden sunshine throughout their heart, and who are now crying so bitterly, "Little lost darling, come back to me lie in my arms as you used to do," to them I would say,

"Though the clouds hang dark above you and your path is lost in night,
Over there beyond the darkness, still the sun is shining bright,
God is love, He does not chasten with an angry rod, in death,
'Tis a gentle summons higher, and His arms are underneath."

NOTICE.

NORTH CAROLINA, } In the Superior Court,
CUMBERLAND COUNTY. } 1889.

Sarah Sinclair, Hays Jones and others, to the Court ex parte.

Summons for Publication.

This is an action to sell real estate for the purpose of making real estate assets to pay the debts due by the estate and for division among the heirs at law of Isham Jones, deceased.

It appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that the defendant, Quincy B. Sutton, is a non resident of North Carolina, and after due diligence cannot be found in said State, and is a necessary party to this action, notice is hereby given to the said defendant, Quincy B. NOTICE.
The Copartnership heretofore existing between J. L. Prior and A. J. Cook is this day dissolved by mutual consent. J. L. Prior having sold his interest to A. J Cook & Co., who will continue the business at the old stand, and hope for a continuance of the liberal patronage bestowed on the old firm. The new firm assumes all liabilities and will collect all accounts of the old firm.
April 1, 1889.

I will leave Fayetteville shortly to engage in business elsewhere and have sold my interest in the firm of Prior & Cook to A. J. Cook & Co., who will with increased capital continue the Drug Business at the old stand. I would hereby tender my most hearty thanks to the people of Fayetteville, vicinity and adjoining counties for the generous support and unvarying kindness to me during my business career in Fayetteville, and assure them that I will carry with me to my new home the most pleasant and grateful recollections of them. Moreover, I would most heartily commend to that same generous support and kindness my successors, Messrs. A. J. Cook & Co. who, I feel assured, will be in every way worthy of it. Very respectfully,

J. L. PRIOR.

LOSING AND LIVING.

Forever the sun is pouring his gold
On a hundred worlds that beg and borrow;
His warmth he squanders on summits cold,
His wealth on the homes of want and sorrow;
To withhold his largess of precious light
Is to bury himself in eternal night
To give
Is to live.

The flower shines not for itself at all;
Its joy is the joy it freely diffuses;
Of beauty and balm it is prodigal,
And it lives in the light it freely loses;
No choice for the rose but glory or doom,
To exhale or smother, to wither or bloom,
To deny
Is to die.

The seas lend silvery rain to the land,
The land its sapphire streams to the ocean;
The heart sends blood to the brain of command;
The brain to the heart its lightning motion;
And ever and ever we yield our breath,
Till the mirror is dry and images death,
To give
Is to live.

He is dead whose hand is not opened wide
To help the need of a human brother;
He doubles the length of his life-long ride
Who gives his fortunate place to another;
And a thousand million lives are his
Who carries the world in his sympathies.
To deny
Is to die.

A Seared Editor.

A rugged farmer stalked into the sanctum with a big whip under his arm.

"Be you the editor?" he asked. "I am," was the half apprehensive reply.

"Here's two dollars—send me your paper, for life," he said.

"You see," he went on, "our daughter was sick and liked to die; she drooped and grew weak and pale, had headaches, no appetite, back ached, feet and hands like ice, couldn't sleep, hacked with cough, and we thought she had consumption. No medicine helped her till we tried that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription mentioned in your paper, when she began to mend in no time and is now well and handsome as a rose—put me down as a life subscriber."

Now the editor is looking for another scare. The medicine has cured scores afflicted as was the farmer's daughter, restoring the female functions to healthy action, and removing the obstructions and suppressions which caused her trouble. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction, or price ($1.00) refunded.

DO IT NOW

With that most reliable medicine—Paine's Celery Compound. It purifies the blood, cures Constipation, and regulates the liver and kidneys, effectually cleansing the system of all waste and dead matters.

Paine's Celery Compound

combines true nerve tonic and strengthing qualities, reviving the energies and spirits.

"I have been troubled for some years with a complication of difficulties. After trying various remedies, and not finding relief, I tried Paine's Celery Compound. Before taking one full bottle the long troublesome symptoms began to subside, and I can truly say now, that I feel like a new man. Digestion has improved, and I have gained ten pounds in weight since I have commenced taking the Compound."

A Planters Experience.

"My plantation is in a malarial district, where fever and ague prevailed. I employ 150 hands; frequently half of them were sick. I was nearly discouraged when I began the use of

Tutt's Pills

The result was marvellous. My men became strong and hearty, and I have had no further trouble. With these pills, I would not fear to live in any swamp." E. RIVAL, Bayou Sara, La.

PRICES REASONABLE.

I respectfully call your attention to

The Bandana Spring Bed.

The East Indian word "Bandana," meaning "a covering," gives it the name. It is a very superior set of Bessemer Steel Spiral Springs, with a rim of spring edge rattan, upon a substantial (but light) frame, upholstered with Pine Fibre (or Hair, or any article specially ordered) and covered with an elegant quality of fancy ticking, generally red striped (fast color). The bottom of the bed is covered with strong ticking which is tacked and then glued on, so that insects and dust are effectually kept out We have a patent on the idea and process of covering and sealing the bottoms.

The Bandana has advantages over other upholstered springs which can easily be shown, among which are the following:

3 SPECIAL FEATURES.

1. It is light, (weighing from 40 to 60 lbs. less than other upholstered spring beds.)

2. It is tight. (The bottom being covered with strong ticking glued on, so as to prevent dust and insects getting inside.)

3. No Cords are used in its construction. (The kind of spring we use forming complete surface makes this possible and insures comfort and durability.)

Two patents protect these special features.

We also have every facility for making Mattresses of the most perfect shape and of every size and quality We claim to use only nice, clean filling, strong tickings and the best quality of mattress twine and tufts

Mattresses will be made to any size ordered, and of any material or of two or more different materials if desired, on shortest notice.

Prices as follows: F. O. B.—(Subject to change without notice.)

Mattresses Filled With:	Double Bed—Retail.
Hair—40 lbs.	$10.00, $15.00 and $22 50
Moss	6.50

NOTICE.

NORTH CAROLINA, CUMBERLAND COUNTY. } In Superior Court.

W. N. Williams, Trustee, and J. D. Williams ex. Mrs. Elizabeth Walker and A. B. Walker her husband.

Notice of Lis Pendens.

The object of the above action is to subject the lands of the defendants to the payment of certain indebtedness created by them in favor of the plaintiffs and secured by two certain deeds or trust recorded in Book A, No. 3, Pages 584 and 654 in Register's office of Cumberland County, said lands being particularly described therein, as well as in the complaint of the Plaintiffs which is now on file in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Cumberland County, where said action is now pending.

The dates of the mortgages (or deeds of trust) herein referred to are December 27th, 1878, and March 10th, 1879, and they were recorded respectively on January 13th and March 11th, 1879.

The relief prayed for by the plaintiffs in this action is that the lands described in said deeds of trust be sold and the proceeds thereof applied to the satisfaction of the debts therein secured.

W. N WILLIAMS, Trustee,
and J. D. WILLIAMS, Plaintiffs.

This notice filed and publication of the same in the FAYETTEVILLE OBSERVER ordered April 9th, 1889.
